Propolis Cosmetics

“Feel the power of Propolis”

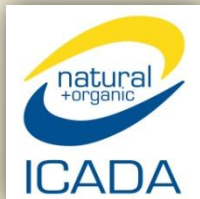

My bee

- Mybee is a Greek company specializing in the production of certified bio-natural + organic medicated cosmetics that are based on Propolis. Building on the family's tradition of bee keeping and specializing in the production and processing of Propolis our company was founded by people with great love for bees and nature.
- The core ingredient of our products is Propolis, which is collected from our bees, located exclusively in the area of Plastiras Lake, in Karditsa. Lake Plastiras as well as the wider region features a rich ecosystem, which is ideal for the development of beekeeping and the production of high quality propolis.
- In addition to Propolis, ingredients from the Greek nature are collected to create our products. Beeswax, honey, olive oil, lupine, achilles, wild rose and mountain herbs, interact with Propolis and give us products that except from enhancing and maintaining beauty they protect the skin from mild skin diseases.

My bee

- Mybee implements accredited control systems of cosmetic organizations and our products are bio-natural + organic certified (National Organization for Medicines, CPNP Notification, HALAL, ICADA).
- In collaboration with the National Center for Scientific Research "DEMOKRITOS" we provide scientific evidence of the beneficial properties of our Propolis. The research is focused on the presence of bioactive compounds, with antimicrobial activity of propolis and selected essential oils. Propolis samples are exclusively collected from the area of Karditsa and are utilized by our company.
- We are against animal experiments and our products have never been tested on animals for cosmetic purposes (PeTA certification).
- We are actively involved in national and international non-profit organizations (1% for the Planet, SOS-Bee) donating part of our revenues to protect the environment.

What is Propolis?

- The word “Propolis” is derived from the Greek pro (for “in front of” or “at the entrance to”) and polis (“community” or “city”) and means a substance in defense of the hive.
- Prevent diseases and parasites from entering the hive, and to inhibit fungal and bacterial growth.
- Propolis is a natural remedy used extensively since ancient times as an antiseptic and as a wound healing agent.
- Egyptians knew very well the valuable properties of Propolis and used it to make cosmetics. Greek physicians (Aristotles, Dioscorides) were familiar with the medicinal properties of Propolis.
- Propolis was employed as an antiseptic and cicatrizing in wound treatment and as a mouth disinfectant, with these uses being perpetuated in the Middle Ages and among Arab physicians.

Properties of Propolis

- The antimicrobial activity of propolis is by far the most important biological property of propolis, which has deserved the highest scientific interest.
- Propolis acts against a number of parasites. Thus, it could act as a protective agent against intestinal parasites.
- An antioxidant is a molecule capable of slowing or preventing the oxidation of other molecules and so to prevent such changes.
- All propolis types have immune stimulating.

- The antitumor activity of propolis, shows that the chemo preventive - activity of propolis are likely to be the result of their ability to inhibit DNA synthesis in tumor cells, their capability to induce apoptosis (cell death) of tumor cells.
- Inflammation is the complex biological response of vascular tissues to harmful stimuli, such as pathogens, damaged cells, irritants and free radicals.
- The application of propolis in veterinary medicine is based on its antimicrobial properties.
